Q: Adding UILabels to UIImagesView I have two identical UIViews and I want to add each of them with two Labels as below: I try the below code: UIImage *backgroundImage = [UIImage imageNamed:@"background"]; UIImageView *backgroundImageView = [[UIImageView alloc] initWithImage:backgroundImage]; [self.view addSubview:backgroundImageView]; UILabel *storedEmailLabel = [[UILabel alloc] initWithFrame:CGRectMake(410, 10, 100, 50)]; UILabel *storedPasswordLabel = [[UILabel alloc] initWithFrame:CGRectMake(410, 60, 100, 50)]; storedEmailLabel.text = [NSString stringWithFormat:@"Email"]; storedPasswordLabel.text = [NSString stringWithFormat:@"Password"]; [backgroundImageView addSubview:storedEmailLabel]; [backgroundImageView addSubview:storedPasswordLabel]; [backgroundImageView release]; [storedEmailLabel release]; [storedPasswordLabel release]; But it just give me one UILabel for both Views. Is there any way to do it? A: There is only one label at any given time. You need to split up the contents into two labels and add them to the view, then reuse the same view so you do not have two labels on the screen at the same time. (You will also need to keep track of those labels that are in use so you can add to them.) Here is a sample: - (void)viewDidLoad { [super viewDidLoad]; // Do any additional setup after loading the view, typically from a nib. UIImage *backgroundImage = [UIImage imageNamed:@"background"]; UIImageView *backgroundImageView = [[UIImageView alloc] initWithImage:backgroundImage]; [self.view addSubview:backgroundImageView]; UILabel *storedEmailLabel = [[UILabel alloc] initWithFrame:CGRectMake(410, 10, 100, 50)];
